

Rural Arts

Information, Advice & Guidance Policy

Last Reviewed March 2022

Effective until March 2023

Overview

All Rural Arts staff are committed to providing an accurate Information, Advice and Guidance (IAG) service to all customers.

Rural Arts provides independent information, advice and guidance services to anyone who wishes to access our workshops, courses, programmes or services. This includes any potential new entrants/learners or those already involved with us.

Rural Arts supports the concept of lifelong learning. By providing quality information, advice and guidance about services, Rural Arts helps clients/customers make informed choices about the workshops, courses, programmes or services that they either are undertaking or considering. The IAG process is a continual process throughout learners' programmes.

In order to ensure the highest level of IAG quality, Rural Arts held the Matrix Standard for a number of years. The quality of the service is monitored through performance data, feedback from users, peer review, self-assessment and external monitoring.

We strive to provide information, advice and guidance that is:

- Timely, easily accessible and in a form that is easily understood by all
- Independent, confidential and focused on the needs of the individual
- Able to provide access to a range of agencies for specialist support
- Free from stereotyping, physical or cultural barriers for users and in accordance with Rural Arts' Equal Opportunities Policy
- Free of charge to all users
- Subject to evaluation and continuous improvement, encouraging individuals to get the most from their interaction with Rural Arts

The service offers:

- An initial assessment to help identify individuals' skills and aptitudes
- A Tutor/member of staff to discuss individual learner needs and aspirations and plan for the achievement of goals
- Signposting to other agencies who may be able to help learners achieve their goals
